New tools for alcohol management

Monash University GP-led research: strengthen your general practice's capacity to manage patients with problematic alcohol use.

We're looking for general practices to test a new package of resources to increase brief interventions for alcohol use in general practice across Victoria.

Provide patient-centred care and develop better methods and clinical resources for managing problematic alcohol use.

This study will be conducted by Monash University and is funded by the Victorian Health Promotion Foundation (VicHealth).
