

Benefits for your practice

- RACGP-accredited CPD activity
- Meet PIP QI requirements
- In-practice education and support from the Safer Families Centre
- $3000 incentive payment for practices that complete this activity
- Full support from NWMPHN to complete the activity

Provide better care for your patients experiencing family violence.

Opportunity for general practices to receive in-practice education and support from Professor Kelsey Hegarty's team at the University of Melbourne's Safer Families Centre.

Estimates are that each full time GP will see up to five women per week with underlying intimate partner violence, but you may be unaware violence is happening in these families.

Research has also found that there is a spike in family violence during major crises and disasters, including the current pandemic and resulting lockdown.

Join this fully supported quality improvement activity and help build better pathways to safety for people experiencing family violence – at a time when they need it most.

Apply now: nwmphn.org.au/tenders

phn
NORTH WESTERN
MELBOURNE

An Australian Government Initiative