Why eliminate hepatitis C?

In Australia, more than 122,000 people are still living with chronic hepatitis C, and many are unaware they have the virus.¹ With the availability of direct-acting antivirals (DAAs), we have an opportunity to prevent hepatitis C from causing liver damage and impacting a person's health and wellbeing.

If we can find and treat people with hepatitis C, we have an opportunity to eliminate hepatitis C.

Benefits to your practice

Through this project, your practice will learn case-finding skills and quality improvement processes, in a supported way – skills you can apply more broadly to other health issues.

Other benefits include:

- Alignment with the Quality Improvement Practice Incentive Program
- Improve your practice's capacity for continuous quality improvement
- Provide improved care to your patients
- Create opportunities to address other clinical priorities and needs
- Gain ongoing access to a suite of resources to sustain your case-finding and clinical audit capabilities.
